Synopsis

In Snow-Blind, Christian youth fiction by Catherine Farnes, the Craig teens return in a fast-paced story set in the wintry Montana wilderness. Visitors arrive on the scene, not as backpackers but apparently for "business" of an alarming nature. When Jacy and Dakota find out that their own father may be terminally ill and that he may be selling Back Trails, the wilderness tours service, they begin to despair. But as a series of temptations arise that increase their perils, they begin to learn that they must patiently trust the Lord in all of lifeÃ¢â ¬â„¢s complex and challenging circumstances.

Customer Reviews

great story read it

My daughter loved this book, she wants to read all the other ones in the series now. I love the books by BJU Press, I know the content will not only be clean, but Christ honoring.
