Customer Reviews

The author has constructed an interesting but speculative story of how this mechanism was first constructed on the island of Rhodes, and then found its way to the seabed off the coast of the island of Antikithera, between Greece and Crete. In 1901, almost 2000 years later, it was found by sponge divers, and eventually brought to the surface. It provided a challenging task for archeologists and others to work out what its remarkable purpose was.
