Scholarly Writing For Law Students, Seminar Papers, Law Review Notes And Law Review Competition Papers (Coursebook)

Synopsis

This book teaches law students how to write scholarly papers for seminars, law reviews, and law review competitions. It helps novices and even more-experienced scholars to write papers with a minimum of anxiety. Employing a process theory of writing, the text first describes the enterprise of scholarly writing and then discusses techniques for brainstorming, researching, drafting, and revising for substance and style. There are also chapters on footnote practice, plagiarism, law review editing, and publication. Appendixes provide a sample law review competition paper, answers to in-text exercises, and sample syllabi for scholarly writing courses.

Customer Reviews

Students who are already confident in their writing ability will be bored with this book, but can still learn something. Students who really want to improve themselves can learn a lot from this book. It's very, very boring, but if you suffer through it you'll find something you can use. Note: this isn't the kind of book you can skim. You actually need to read it as a whole (at least chapters as a whole) to get anything from this book.

Great product for Law Students who aspire to engage in the scholarly world.

bought it for one of my professor's classes. Didn't actually use it. I recommend buying an "older" edition on and save a lot of money. If you absolutely have to buy it, make sure you re-post it on and try to get your money back at the end of the semester. If the publisher comes out with a new edition while in possession, then you might be in T.R.O.U.B.L.E.
