A Caines Family Tradition: A Native Son's Story Of Fishing, Hunting And Duck Decoys In The Lowcountry

Synopsis

In Winyah Bay, near Georgetown, South Carolina, the Caines family is known for three things: fishing, hunting and hell-raising. Jerry Caines and his younger brother Roy—the Caines boys—grew up following the untamed example of their grandfather, Hucks Caines, and great-uncles—collectively known as the Caines brothers—who were renowned hunting guides at Hobcaw Barony. In this book, follow two generations of hell-raising Caineses as they achieve lasting fame carving duck decoys (now collectable and worth thousands), guiding hunters in Hobcaw Barony, fishing for shad and telling tall tales of their misadventures—often staring smack down the barrel of a rifle, and getting away with it just the same. From Hucks, Sawney, Ball, Bob and Pluty to Jerry and Roy, hunting and fishing in South Carolina will never be the same.

Customer Reviews

Jerry Wayne Caines comes from a long line of hunters and fisherman who have lived in South Carolina's Lowcountry region for generations. The Caines family is famous in the region for their outdoorsmanship and for carving some of the highest quality and most sought after duck decoys in the world.

Having family ties to both Georgetown and Winyah Bay I thoroughly enjoyed this book. Having met the Caines boys (Jerry and Roy) and knowing of their great skills and heritage as carvers made it even more interesting.

Execellent!
