Emma Apple writes and illustrates children's books for families who want unique, Science, Qur'an and Sunnah friendly bookshelves. She encourages kids to think big thoughts and expand their knowledge while accepting the limits of our understanding. Helping them to grasp complex concepts using authentic Islamic sources and scientific facts. Her debut as an author-illustrator, How Big Is Allah? was independently published in 2014 and quickly reached #1 in the Islamic Children's category, it sold over 1,000 copies within the first year. The follow up book How Does Allah Look? was published in 2015 and reached #1 in the Islamic Children's category on its first day. . When she's not writing, designing pretty things or creating communities, Emma can be found with her husband, daughter and son, kayaking, visiting museums or reading picture books with their story-loving parrot, Ash. Fun facts: 1 - Emma is famous for her love of yellow. 2 - She lives in beautiful Chicago, but is actually from New Zealand. 3 - Emma's a Trekkie and has seen all the Star Trek ever made. 4 - She owns two telescopes and is a regular star (and planet) gazer. Even though this is a children's book I learned so much about the relative size of the Earth as compared to other planets, galaxies, etc. It was a great way to put things in context, and a book I can see us coming back to over and over especially as my kids get more familiar with numbers larger than 2-3 digits. Despite the fact that really big numbers were used, the author/illustrator still made the book accessible for kids through the use illustrations which helped us compare visually. It was a quick read, and helped my 6 year old bring a complex concept into clearer focus. I look forward to the other books in the series because I'm learning as much as the kid!

This book was a delight to read. To be honest, the title was what captured my attention first. As Muslims, we know Allah can't be physically described, so I was intrigued. This book does a phenomenal job explaining how by comparison. My 7 and 6 yr olds loved the book. It's a light read with tons of info and extra Facts at the end of the book. I come from the generation that refuses to believe Pluto is no longer a planet, so reading about the largest planet known was new to me. Tons to learn with the kids, my son loved the outer space vibe of the book. Illustrations were perfect as well. All in all, an awesome read. Can't wait for the second book to be completed!- Samantha Salem (lifeofamompreneur.com)

It's a light read and it has some facts in the back. My 5 and 3 year old love it and it has sparked an interest in space and our solar system! They can't get enough of it which means hours and hours of research for us. :D

Thank you for these books! My now 5 year old had been asking these questions ever since she was able to articulate her curiosity and I was so happy to get her the How Big is Allah book. Although the concepts were a little complicated for her to wrap her mind around, this was a great base. InshaAllah she will understand better as she gets older. Looking forward to the next book, 'How Does Allah Look?', she is so very excited!!

Love it! My son who is 3, and is on a big moon and space kick lately, so he really enjoys this awesome book! Broken down concepts for little people. I love how this book can and will grow with my two kiddos as they mature iA. I'm so happy I made this purchase and look forward to purchasing Emma Apple's other editions!

I Loooooove this book, as did my 3 year old . I bought a couple of others to give away as gifts. It's educational, both islamically and scientifically.LoooooveLoooooveLooooove it!Buy this book!

Well nice explanationLove itFor "Second grade" max
