Helen Gilhooly is Director of the Language Faculty at Aldercar Community Language College, Derbyshire, UK and has taught Japanese at Nottingham University. She is author of various Japanese courses. Niamh Kelly is a lecturer in the Japanese department at Dublin City University.

It was long ago when we bought this Japanese kit. All the family had fun to learning from the Michel Thomas method on the long trips in the car. I think Michel Thomas is the best! Soon I will buy more of language lessons.

I am a big fan of the Michel Thomas method, but find his voice a little annoying and also don't like when he gets frustrated on the CD. Well, this is a huge improvement because he's NOT on it! The teacher has a lovely soothing British accent and I was floored that I was able to speak Japanese so quickly and that it really isn't that hard. I would just ask that a few of the more common phrases be included like Hello, Goodbye, Nice to Meet You, etc. BUT I learned to ask for Sushi and a Beer and that's priceless!!

we have some japanese friends coming to visit and this informal, talking group session gets you talking right away and the teacher gives mnemonic tips to help clue you in. pronunciation is very easy and learning some basic phrases and words is a snap.
